What is a Contract for Difference (CFD)?

Trading · https://windsorbrokers.com/knowledge-base/trading/what-is-a-contract-for-difference-cfd/

A Contract for Difference (CFD) is an over-the-counter (OTC) financial instrument traded directly with the company acting as the counterparty to each transaction. CFD prices are derived from the underlying asset and are not traded on an exchange.

Some CFDs may have an intraday break in addition to a daily market close, during which no transactions can be executed.

For more details, please refer to the Trading Conditions available under Legal Documents in your Client Portal or on our website.